Trailer for ambitious scifi epic LEGENDS OF NETHIAH: THE NAMELESS

Ever wondered what Farscape and Hellraiser's lovechild would look like if it watched too much Chronicles of Riddick? Yeah, I thought you did. Well, I think it would look a lot like Jeremiah Sayys' Legends of Nethiah, an insane looking new scifi feature that defies all attempts at explanation.

We don't know much about the plot but from what I can tell it's about a warrior who is captured and held in a strange prison where creatures can play with his mind and destroy his resolve. It also looks like he may be a gladiator of sorts, or made to fight as one.

The trailer is stunning and reminds me a lot of, as I said above, a Farscape episode that I can't quite remember the name of. Maybe the one where Scorpius tells Crighton his backstory about his life as a Scaron prisoner? Anyway, check out the wicked trailer after the break.

wow, it really does look like what 'Farscape and Hellraiser's lovechild would look like if it watched too much Chronicles of Rid****. they should quote you in their advertising, agentorange.

not sure it really grabs me, but I hope for the film's sake, the acting isn't as annoying as Farscape's (where most of the cast constantly seemed like they were either on Ecstasy or Speed the whole time.)

It's a hard sell with a main character who looks like a burn victim left in the tub too long.

Kind of grabs me. Entizari, I couldn't disagree more with your Farscape opinion. Seems like you've not watched the whole show. I could be wrong though.

And Rek, I totally disagree with you.

I hope they clean it up in Post Production, you can see shadows on the backdrop of the "starry night sky" when the lightening flashes. probably only see it on late night sci fi channel if at all
